This book is about the systems of values, traditions, perceptions, and meanings existing in the Canadian federal public service since the First World War. Surveying that history, it considers the conflict of values arising from the attempt to add New Public Management values to older bureaucratic ones. These tensions are looked at from an ethical viewpoint, but also from that of the relationship between ends and means. Are the means proposed really likely to meet the ends proclaimed? Attempts to change a culture from the top down run against daily realities; the interests, training, and experience of all employees, elites, and others. Authors Dwivedi and Gow intend this overview to enable readers to appreciate the complex world of Canada's public servants. A joint publication with The Institute of Public Administration of Canada.

This book examines administrative changes and reforms carried out in the developing nations: it looks at the role of the state, various administrative reforms carried out at the behest of the West but never fully materialized, and events leading to policy failures and administrative mishaps. It is a story of failed developmental goals told through the looking glass of administration and it is about directing, managing, and controlling the means used in and by Third World countries to achieve development. In addition to a history of development administration, this volume includes an analysis of bureaucratic corruption and accountability, the issue of capability building in science and technology transfer, the new challenge of the 1990s - how to achieve environmentally sustainable development in the face of resource constraints and ever-growing public demands and expectations, and a strategy for sustainable development administration as the Third World prepares for the 21st century.

This book analyzes environmental problems and policies in developing countries around the world and discusses new prospects for international cooperation and funding. It considers hard political choices, who is to blame for environmental decay, who should pay to overcome problems, and how they should be handled. Experts from different countries offer their perspectives about the role of multilateral agencies, the North-South dimensions of environmental problems from 1972 to present, and the experiences in India, China, Indonesia, Africa, Nigeria, Chile, and Mexico. A bibliography enhances this authoritative study for the use of political scientists, economists, and public administrators, for teachers, students, and professionals.

A collection of the 18 essays presented at a 1991 conference held in honor of the well-known Canadian political scientist John Meisel. Contributors explore key issues in Canadian politics including governance, Quebec's place in Canada, French-English relations, multiculturalism, the party system, electoral processes, the regulatory function, and aspects of culture and social science. Managing Development in a Global Context examines the complex relationship between management, development and globalization from a multidimensional perspective. Key authors in the field explore the historical record, the current global, characteristics of present developmental and managerial dilemmas, and possible future scenarios.

This book introduces readers in the environmental policy-making and management process in India by examining various dimensions of environmental challenges faced by the nation. These are: environmental policy development, institutional mechanisms, legal and regulatory questions, cultural and spiritual aspects, and international environmental concerns influencing India. The book is divided into four parts.

This book investigates the complexities of Canadian environmental policy.

During this Advent, take a 25-day journey throughout December exploring the Old Testament promises of the birth of The Promised Seed. You will discover details of His identity, His life, His passion and His birth. And see how all these promises were fulfilled in the person of Jesus Christ as recorded in the New Testament. This Christmas, use the Advent season to gather your family together and grow in your knowledge and love of our glorious Savior. Also included are suggested prayer topics and songs that relate to each day's reading so that families can sing and worship together. Let this Christmas be a time of joyous celebration for The Promised Seed. "Family devotionals can sometimes evolve into an Aesop-like moralism. Often parents don't know how to communicate the gospel of Jesus Christ when taking their children through the whole counsel of God. Mickey McBrayer's advent curriculum will help you to see Christmas for what it really is, a celebration of our Lord Jesus fulfilling every promise made to us." Russell D. Moore, Dean, The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Kentucky, USA "Since Jesus' entrance into the world was in the context and embrace of a family, The Promised Seed brings the story of the advent and incarnation back into that original setting. Like Jesus, this book can enter into the most humble home and heart and bring to life the story that has changed the world. Designed to unite families around the story of Christmas, The Promised Seed provides a focused beam of light on the inspired text of Scripture in an exciting and easily accessible manner. Dr. McBrayer has done a service to the family and the family of God through this unique devotional study. I heartily commend it to all Christian parents who dare to point their children to the real Star of Bethlehem instead of a sleigh from the North Pole." Hershael W. York, Victor and Louise Lester Professor of Christian Preaching, The Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Kentucky, USA "The nostalgic carol may have you singing about a white Christmas, but what you may be in need of is a right Christmas. Dr. Mickey McBrayer has written a masterpiece that can enable you to experience the best time of the year by celebrating the season the way it was intended. This 25-Day Devotional exposes Jesus' irresistible humanity and irrefutable deity by revealing truth! What a gift!" Pastor Tim L. Nobles, First Baptist Church, Brunswick, Georgia, USA
