Ignition Systems for 1998 Acura RL for sale | eBay

Yes, it could be the ignition module. Often when they fail, it is because the internal circuit is affected by heat, and it won't work again until it has cooled off. But a couple of sensors that affect the ignition system can act the very same way. One is the Crankshaft position sensor (CKP sensor), and the other (less likely) is the camshaft position sensor. I will say something about the ...
