Kitty At St Clares Book

Kitty's adventures are very funny; Cox tries hard to recapture and emulate the language of the original era (St Clare's was written during the latter stages of World War II) and is beset with the usual problems and conflicts in boarding school life: the problems with Amanda and her second form stepsister Helen, the third form's battle with the second form with whom they're forced to share a common room, and both forms' problems with deputy head girl Margaret.

Another Pamela Cox concoction, Kitty at St. Clare's is the sixth book in the timeline of the series - the third form. Cox decides to abandon all the nice things Blyton could do and picked on the one thing that annoys me - stereotyping people based on their nationality. Such stereotyping and racism can be overlooked coming from an author writing in the 1940s in
