I somehow remember one question from the Algebra part of the UP MBA proficiency exam reviewer – the Mensa Question. Honestly, it gave me headaches when I first read the question. It said, quoted in parenthesis, in the first part of the question that – the question is very easy but you will need your imagination and creativity to answer this question correctly –.

Because faculty members' thinking is immersed in the discipline(s) they teach, it often makes good sense to begin an assessment initiative at a college or university by focusing on student learning in the discipline, or academic major. This new issue illustrates how assessment initiatives focused in that fashion can be the starting point of a successful institutional assessment program. Methods range from faculty-developed comprehensive exams to computer simulations, from patient-actors to electronic portfolios. Disciplines represented include political science, psychology, sociology, nursing, teacher education, social work, engineering and technology, business, history, urban studies and planning, communications, and fitness/wellness.
