This book introduces Chinese language-processing issues and techniques to readers who already have a basic background in natural language processing (NLP). Since the major difference between Chinese and Western languages is at the word level, the book primarily focuses on Chinese morphological analysis and introduces the concept, structure, and interword semantics of Chinese words.

Bidirectional Encoder Representations from Transformers (BERT) has shown marvelous improvements across various NLP tasks, and various variants have been proposed to further improve the performance of the pre-trained models. In this paper, we target on revisiting Chinese pre-trained models to examine their effectiveness in a non-English language and release the Chinese pre-trained model series ...

Natural language processing is a subfield of linguistics, computer science, and artificial intelligence concerned with the interactions between computers and human language, in particular how to program computers to process and analyze large amounts of natural language data. Challenges in natural language processing frequently involve speech recognition, natural language understanding, and natural-language generation.

It is a nice course for those interested in working on natural language processing in Chinese, as it can help further career, as Chinese is the second largest used language. It can help in dealing with Chinese business opportunities. The course is organised in a good manner and made easy to understand even if you do not know the Chinese language. The instructor has command over the subject, which helped me to learn machine learning techniques in the Chinese.
