Introduction to palliative

~~care Palliative Care Nursing~~

~~Caring For~~

Community nurses usually visit you at home, and family and friends may be closely involved in caring for you too. What is palliative care? End of life care includes palliative care. If you have an illness that cannot be cured, palliative care makes you as comfortable as possible, by managing your pain and other distressing symptoms. It also involves psychological,

~~What end of life care
involves — NHS~~

Palliative care is the type of care given to people who are living with a terminal illness. It aims to manage pain and other symptoms rather than providing a cure. It ensures that a person is as comfortable as possible. Palliative care forms a part of end of life care.

terminal illness and everyone affected by their diagnosis to achieve the best quality of life. As well as providing care and support to patients, palliative care nurses help entire families through one of the toughest times any of us will face. It's a challenging but highly rewarding job.

~~How to become a palliative care nurse~~

Providing palliative care involves serious challenges for nurses, such as end-of-life decisions, contact with people's suffering and dying, and increased risk of burnout. However, studies

~~Caring for Carers~~

Palliative care is treatment, care and support for people with a life-limiting illness, and their family and friends. It's sometimes called 'supportive care'. The aim of palliative care is to help you to have a good quality of life - this includes being as well and active as possible in the time you have left.

~~What are palliative care and end of life care?~~

The nutritional objective in palliative care should be about quality of life including comfort, symptom relief and enjoyment of food. 3 Whilst it is important to prevent or treat avoidable malnutrition, it is also important that nutritional support measures are not so invasive or unacceptable that they impair quality of life.

~~6 Principles of palliative care – International ...~~

Nursing is a responsibility of a public health, an application of concern and a legitimate perception. Palliative Care is an end-of-life care where the serious illness affects the more than just a patient's body. It treats and improves the quality of lives of the person's family members along with a patient.
