At the time when he wrote Romans, Paul had never visited Rome, although Chapter 16 of Romans does indicate that he had acquaintances there.

Writing to a community largely composed of strangers, then, Paul may have felt compelled to use the restrained and magisterial declarations of Roman style, rather

It is important to understand that the letter of Romans written by Paul is just that: a letter (a long one). Originally, it had no chapter numbers or verse numbers; it was just one long letter. Just like a letter or email we might write, we intend for it to be read all at once (no matter how long), rather
