Hanna Rosin reviews startling new data that shows women actually surpassing men in several important measures, such as college graduation rates. Do these trends, both US-centric and global, signal the "end of men"? Probably not -- but they point toward an important societal shift worth deep discussion.

Over the past 40 years, the UK has seen an almost continual rise in the proportion of women in employment. The employment rate among women of "prime working age" (aged 25-54) is up from 57% in 1975 to a record high of 78% in 2017. This predominantly reflects an increase in full-time employment, from 29% in 1985 (when data on hours of work began) to 44% in 2017.

Another woman offered to let me watch her with another woman having lesbian sex. None of them were old ugly women. They were all 30ish and very athletic and beautiful. Satan was offering temptation. God says to flee from sin. I choose God. I have no doubt that all those women were into witchcraft and trying to defeat a Christian.
