Regarding philosophical importance, Edmund

Husserl is arguably
"the" German export of the early twentieth century. In the wake of the linguistic turn(s) of the humanities, however, his claim to return to the "Sachen selbst" became metonymic for the neglect of language in Western philosophy.
This view has been particularly influential in post-structural literary theory, which has never ceased to attack the supposed

"logophobie" of
phenomenology.

Letter. Husserl and Literature" challenges
this verdict regarding the poetological and logical implications of Husserl's work through examination of his writing in the context of literary theory, classical rhetoric, and modern art.

At issue is an approach to phenomenology and literature that does not merely coordinate the two discourses but explores their mutual implication.

of medicine, the human and the humane in the German-speaking lands.

The volume tracks the inhumane, from the Middle Ages to the present day. Eight individual chapters

undertake explorations into ways in which medicine in the German-

come to define the human, and highlight how such theories and practices have consolidated, or undermined, notions of humane behaviour.
Cultural analysis is central to this investigation, foregrounding the reflection, refraction and indeed creation of these theories and practices in literature, life-writing and other discourses and media. Contributors bring to bear perspectives from literary studies, film studies, critical theory, cultural studies, history, and the history of medicine and psychiatry. Thus, this
