The Librarian, written by Salley Vickers, is a dream novel if you are a booklover. It is of course set predominately in a library and follows the journey of Sylvia Blackwell, a young woman who takes up the position of a Children's Librarian in a declining library.

The Librarian by Salley Vickers

A charmingly subversive novel about a library in 1950s England, by the acclaimed author of The Cleaner of Chartres. Sylvia Blackwell, a young woman in her twenties, moves to East Mole, a quaint market town in middle England, to start a new job as a children's librarian. But the apparently pleasant town is not all it seems.

Although targetted at librarians I think the book's accessible and practical nature would help anyone involved with learning facilitation or teaching. I strongly recommend people buy this book, share it with colleagues, get their manager to buy one for the team, get their library to buy a copy you can borrow, read someone else's copy and adapt the ideas, show it to any teachers/lecturers ...

Rosenbloom's curiosity has led to the recent release of her first book, "Dark Archives: A Librarian's Investigation into the Science and History of Books Bound in Human Skin," (Farrar, Straus & Giroux). As the title implies, this rare and macabre corner of the literary world is not always an easy subject for librarians, historians and medical professionals to discuss.
