While the mind is capable of great things, much of the time it limits us. Call it what you will: the monkey mind, the reptilian brain, the ego ☺ they're all the same. You are not your mind. And as one of my mentors says: Your mind is not your friend. While your mind may try to keep you safe, it does not support your growth as a person.

Your mind is not capable of making proper decisions. You, your intelligence and your experiences ultimately define how you answer questions, how you react to situations, and who you are as a human-being. "The most decisive event in your life is when you discover you are not your thoughts or emotions.
